ready. I pray for Gerard's comfort. I pray that he is resting in the arms of Our Lord. If he wasn't ready, I pray for God's forgiveness and mercy on his soul.

As part of our Christian life we are to give thought to what we have done and failed to do in our actions. We have been taught to follow Christ in his teachings found in the Bible and told to us in Scripture readings and Sermons in each Mass service. How well do we listen and follow these teachings? Do we have time to change? I leave you with this one thought to ponder during your waking hours, "If it were your time to provide an answer, if given the chance, what would you say to Jesus when he asks, 'What have you done for me lately?'"

"Man is condemned to be free, because once thrown into the world he is responsible for everything he does," Jean-Paul Sartre.

Memorial of Our Lady of Fatima

Between May 13 and October 13, 1917, three Portuguese children received apparitions of Our Lady at Cova da Iria, near Fatima, a city 110 miles north of Lisbon. (See February 20 entry for Blesseds Jacinta and Francisco Marto). Mary asked the children to pray the rosary for world peace, for the end of World War I, for sinners and for the conversion of Russia. The third visionary, Lucia dos Santos, became a Carmelite nun and died in 2005 at the age of 97.

Mary gave the children three secrets. Since Francisco died in 1919 and Jacinta the following year, Lucia revealed the first secret in 1927, concerning devotion to the Immaculate Heart of Mary. The second secret was a vision of hell.

Pope John Paul II directed the Holy See's Secretary of State to reveal the third secret in 2000; it spoke of a "bishop in white" who was shot by a group of soldiers who fired bullets and arrows into him. Many people linked this to the assassination attempt against Blessed John Paul II in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981.

The feast of Our Lady of Fatima was approved by the local bishop in 1930; it was added to the Church's worldwide calendar in 2002.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith prepared a June 26, 2000 document explaining the "third secret" (available at www.vatican.va).

"Throughout history there have been supernatural apparitions and signs which go to the heart of human events and which, to the surprise of believers and non-believers alike, play their part in the unfolding of history. These manifestations can never contradict the content of faith and must, therefore, have their focus in the core of Christ's proclamation: the Father's love which leads men and women to conversion and bestows the grace required to abandon oneself to him with filial devotion. This too is the message of Fatima which, with its urgent call to conversion and penance, draws us to the heart of the Gospel" (The Message of Fatima, Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, June 26, 2000).

This is the 100th anniversary of the apparitions at Fatima.

Christian Awareness

By Alex J. Nagem

Imagine you are standing in a long line. You can't see too far ahead from all the people in front of you. The line of people is moving slowly. You only stand in one spot a few seconds, then take a step forward. Conversations are heard of what questions will be asked and what each person expects to say. The anticipation becomes more overwhelming the closer you move to the front of the line. Some show signs of distress on their face, while others smile. You begin to think back of all you have done, good and bad. Was the joke about the co-worker with a lisp really that funny? He didn't laugh, but felt hurt. He considered you a friend. Was keeping the $20 that you saw fall from the young ladies pocket now worth it? How about the rumors you helped spread about the classmate of one of your children that alienated that child from others? You didn't even know the truth about the child, but wanted to fit in with others yourself. There are many instances that run through your mind within seconds. You become dazed with thoughts. You can't think of an instance when you felt you had done something good for others. What will you say to clear yourself? Is there anything to say at all at this point? Now you begin to worry. You realize the line is becoming shorter. The line seems to be moving faster. You can now see what is ahead. There is someone sitting on a large chair with what appear to be angels around him. You only saw angels in pictures as depicted by the mind of an artist. They are not what you expected. You now see the man sitting in the chair as well. His features are not what you had thought. His face is breathtaking. All you can focus on is his face. Your heart is pounding so loud in your ears you can hardly hear what he asks you. Was it a question or a command? Did he say move to the left or the right? Then an angel guides you to the left. Why the left? Is this the good side? You can't remember since you did not read much of the Bible and were too busy day dreaming during Mass when you would occasionally attend. Then you hear his voice, "Truly as you did not do it to one of the least of these, you did not do it to me. And these will go away into eternal punishment, but the righteous into eternal life," (Matthew 25:45-46). You try to cry out but your voice is lost. You try harder to explain, but no words can pass your lips. As the angel grabs your arm to lead you away you look with fear and sorrow at the others you are about to follow. Your feet have become frozen in place. You don't want to go. You try to plead your case with the angel for your bad behavior, but your voice cannot be found. You only see darkness on the left side, while there is a beautiful light to the right. Is there a chance now to change your direction? You begin to pray, but can't remember the words. Prayer has not been something in your daily life. You always thought there would be more time, or maybe you thought prayer was not needed. Then you have the feeling of falling into the darkness. No one is around. You are all alone. You are cold and feel lost. Then you hear a ringing sound. It is a familiar sound, an awaking sound. You realize that it is the alarm clock and what you had experienced was a dream, or was it a picture of what was to come? You lay staring at the numbers on the clock. The time is 4:44am. Your arm is still outstretched with fingers on the clock. You continue to stare at the time. Your alarm was to go off at 5am, not 4:44. The display does not change from 4:44. Is the clock broken or has the dream left its mark on you? For the first time in a morning, you try to find the words to pray for help and forgiveness. You are worried and become deep in thought. After a few minutes, the time on the clock has not changed. Has your time finally run out? Is this how it will end? I did not intend this to read like a plot for an Alfred Hitchcock movie or a Jean-Paul Sartre writing? But maybe we should spend more time thinking of what we will say if we have the chance, but what if we don't? Recently, a long time friend passed away suddenly. I have wondered if he was
